This week I and Fanny have worked together on developing the UI for our environmental questions. We have not quite finished as we ran into some problems with the library that we are using for graphics.

So for the next sprint I hope to get a better understanding of the library, I can probably get help from my team members that are more comfortable with it. Once I have gotten a better hang of it I hope to be more effective with coding. I also hope to contribute more to our team reflection.

Although I had some problems this sprint it is still a huge improvement compared to last sprint where I couldn't contribute at all since I was sick.
